Origins and Early Political Foundations (1947–1958)

Partition and the Birth of Pakistan

Pakistan emerged from the tumult of Partition in 1947, a traumatic division that split British India into India and Pakistan. The partition caused massive displacement, communal violence, and a significant challenge for the nascent state's political institutions. The founding leaders, primarily Muhammad Ali Jinnah, envisioned Pakistan as a homeland for Muslims, emphasizing Islamic identity alongside democratic principles.

Initial Political Structures and Leadership

The early political framework was heavily influenced by Jinnah's vision of a parliamentary democracy. The Government of India Act 1935 served as a foundation, but Pakistan's first constitution was drafted in 1956, establishing a federal parliamentary system. The Pakistan Muslim League (PML), led by Jinnah and later Khawaja Nazimuddin, dominated politics during this period. However, the nascent state faced significant challenges: - Ethnic and regional disparities - Administrative instability - Limited political experience and institutions

Challenges to Stability

The period from independence to 1958 was marked by political unrest, economic difficulties, and regional tensions, especially between East and West Pakistan. The lack of a strong institutional framework and the dominance of political elites led to frequent government changes and growing dissatisfaction.

The Era of Military Interventions and Martial Laws (1958–1988)

Military Seizure of Power: Ayub Khan's Regime

In 1958, General Ayub Khan led Pakistan's first military coup, citing political instability and economic stagnation. Political parties were suppressed, and opposition was marginalized.

Rise of Political Opposition and the 1960s Turmoil

Despite restrictions, opposition parties like the Pakistan Peoples Party (PPP), founded by Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, gained popularity. The 1960s witnessed growing dissent against Ayub's rule, culminating in protests, strikes, and demands for democratic governance.

general elections, which resulted in a victory for the PPP and the Awami League in East Pakistan. However, the central government's refusal to transfer power led to tensions that escalated into the Bangladesh Liberation War.
